ANNOTATION

The year 2021, carried in the spirit of the global pandemic crisis, greatly affected the way society operates. Challenges associated with the situation caused by the spread of Covid-19 create space for answering the fundamental questions that examine core pillars of a democratic society. We find ourselves in a moment that requires a responsible academic approach in offering reflection and possible solutions to resonant or gradually appearing problematic issues. Topics such as the realization of democracy in a pandemic situation, the degree of respect for individual human rights, the polarization of society, or the rise of political extremism come to the fore, but the range of possible topics seems endless. The year 2021 brings new challenges in the field of international relations, public administration, sociology, economics, the environment in the context of a pandemic. The growing relevance of these interconnected topics requires an increasingly intense discussion and in-depth analysis, including your contributions, which we will certainly appreciate.
